Application for Strategy Associate Consultant Internship at Emerton

Dear Sir/Madam,

Through this letter, I want to express my motivation to join Emerton. I am a people-lover with a problem-solving mind, ready to launch my professional journey. Fascinated about how the digital era is changing each industry, I am eager to be part of this new way of approaching challenges.

With an academic background in Biomedical Engineering, I developed a strong analytical mind and learned to not avoid highly complex situations but rather tackle them with critical and logical thinking. I am a very dedicated person and I am not afraid to work hard in order to reach an objective. As a matter of fact, during these Master studies, my fellow-student and I worked on a project where we had to design a not yet existing machine for making pills that would fit on a pharmacist's desk. We paid close attention to the many requirements and constraints that were posed and took them into consideration during our intense brainstorm sessions. Afterwards, during the realization of our final idea, we often worked until late in the evening to reach our objectives. This project helped me to improve my organizational and time management skills. Furthermore, I strongly believe that by working together and combining skills, you can achieve more and therefore am a true team player and I carefully listen to other people's opinions.

My natural curiosity and hunger for learning new subjects, led me to pursue a Master in International Business, in which I got familiar with many disciplines of business. Corporate strategy, project management, accounting as well as people management, time management and many more, are now part of my skills set. Within an aspiring multinational environment, I learned to put knowledge into practice and gained insight in many different global markets. Furthermore, over the years, I refined my English and by living in Paris, I improved my French language skills. As a result, I now speak both languages fluently. Having finished my second master's degree, I am now more than ready to deploy the knowledge I have acquired into practice and grow both professionally and personally.

As a fresh graduate who is looking for a consulting opportunity in Paris, Emerton caught my eye because of its innovative approach as well as the positive and stimulating atmosphere the company creates for its employees. The fact-based and hands-on approach of Emerton are well in line with my way of solving problems. Next, I was very pleased to see Emerton's overall high score of 4,5 out of 5 on Vault, which proves its growing perspective and effective approach of working.

I want to join an international firm that would expose me to a diverse set of multidisciplinary challenges. I am convinced that Emerton is a great workplace for this due to its devoted international team and focus on innovative projects. Additionally, I find it exciting to help clients improve and/or transform their business to become more valuable. To this extent, a position as a strategy associate consultant intern would be a wonderful experience to put into practice everything I studied over the last years. Especially in Emerton's environment that seems to me particularly stimulating and full of challenges.

Hoping to have transmitted you my enthusiasm.
I look forward to hearing from you.

Warm regards,
Nathalie Bergs
